ARTIST TEAM STATEMENT

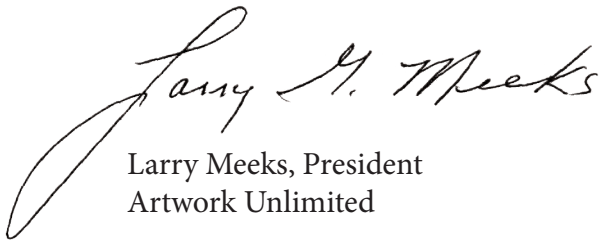

Artwork Unlimited is a father-and-son design and construction collaboration that has completed numerous public commissions throughout Sacramento over the last 17 years. Our team-oriented approach creates an environment of success by promoting collaboration with jurisdictional departments, key stakeholders, and the communities we serve. By understanding project constraints, we find opportunities to create unique sculptural ideas that feel natural, exciting, and timeless.

We see public art as a beacon that draws neighbors together — countering isolation and fostering genuine community interaction. Art intended for public gathering and wayfinding demands durable materials designed to be touched, withstand use, and remain accessible to all ages. Every piece we create is built to provide years of safe, meaningful public engagement.

Our team is led by Larry Meeks, artist and sculptor. With an artistic eye sharpened over decades of working in steel and stainless steel, Larry sees opportunity in every site and captures that feeling in sculpture. His expertise with durable materials ensures lasting value for our clients. Larry also holds a master's degree in counseling psychology, which he applies to stakeholder engagement — listening at a deeper level to draw out a community's true aspirations and provide clarity to public art goals.

Corey Meeks, a licensed architect with twenty-six years of experience, brings expertise in site placement, accessibility, and how communities respond to the built environment. His talents allow people to envision the finished work through compelling visual presentations. Corey ensures every project stays on schedule, on budget, and aligned with the goals of the Art in Public Places Program.

What truly sets Artwork Unlimited apart is that we are also local licensed general contractors. With full design, fabrication, and installation capabilities, we can deliver safe public art from concept to completion — minimizing liability impacts on local government while maintaining artistic integrity. We are proud contributors to Sacramento's art community. We love our home and are excited at the opportunity to collaborate with our neighbors to create art that is timeless and lasts for generations to come.
